English Language Learners Network Posts Bibliography

The National Writing Project English Language Learners (ELL) Network has posted a bibliography on its webpage to help teachers and sites address the needs of second language learners. The bibliography offers a selection of both theory and practice-oriented books and articles that address issues of second language composition, literacy development, and grammar. ELL Network leaders hope the resource will be useful to individuals looking to add ELL-related articles to their site's summer institutes, to develop a special ELL institute or study group, or simply to further their understanding of the complexities of learning to write in a second language.

The bibliography was developed by members of the NWP ELL Network. To access this bibliography, go to www.writingproject.org/downloads/ellbiblio.pdf. For more information and a discussion of ELL Network topics, please sign up for the English Language Learners Network discussion listserv, which is available through NWP Interactive (NWPi) at www.writingproject.org.